Tears gracefully drip off her cheek as if they were birds taking flight from the tops of the biggest trees soft noises get louder and louder in the distance but it's only her that hears them Crying rivers at night on her windowsill maybe that's why they call them windowpanes