

Jason was the young leader of the fierce Igo tribe of warriors. They had a mammoth sailing vessel which carried them from adventure to adventure. The latest quest for fame and glory led Jason to the mighty South Pacific seas in search of the Blue Whale. The Blue Whale had been swallowing ships and men for years in the south seas and Jason wanted to end it.

The Igo tribe prepared for the trip by making spears to cast into the side of the great Blue Whale. Once they had the spears in the side of the whale, Jason was going to slip into the mouth of the whale. Then he could free the men and the ships that the whale had swallowed.

The ship set sail one bright morning, catching a great north wind in its sails, which Jason said was a lucky sign. "We will be successful on this voyage because we have the great north wind behind us," he told his crew. "We will catch the great Blue Whale, tame it, and then free the men who were savagely swallowed," said Jason, standing before the front mast. Then he unfurled the spinnaker and they set sail on their voyage.

The Igo crew sailed for thirty days and nights, battling storms, high waves, and winds. Finally they reached the beautiful blue waters of the south seas. Then they began to search for the great Blue Whale. Suddenly the lookout yelled, “Thar she blows, Captain Jason, and she’s about twenty knots away!”

Soon the whale was upon the sailing vessel and it opened its jaws to swallow the boat. Then Jason gave the order to cast all spears into the side of the whale, and the crew threw their spears. The whale bellowed and thrashed. As the whale was distracted, Jason slipped inside his mouth and gathered the crews that the whale had swallowed in the past. The men were overjoyed that they were being rescued, and they banded together to escape from the whale’s mouth.

Once the men were out, the ship sailed toward the great whirlpool in the sea, and the whale followed and was sucked down into the whirlpool, never to be seen again. The men rejoiced and said they would join the might Igo tribe and allow Jason to be their leader.

|   |     |
|---|-----|
| Jason was the young leader of the fierce Igo tribe of warriors.         | 12  |
| They had a mammoth sailing vessel which carried them from               | 22  |
| adventure to adventure. The latest quest for fame and glory led Jason   | 34  |
| to the mighty South Pacific seas in search of the Blue Whale. The Blue  | 48  |
| Whale had been swallowing ships and men for years in the south seas     | 61  |
| and Jason wanted to end it.   | 67  |
| The Igo tribe prepared for the trip by making spears to cast into       | 80  |
| the side of the great Blue Whale. Once they had the spears in the side  | 95  |
| of the whale, Jason was going to slip into the mouth of the whale.      | 109 |
| Then he could free the men and the ships that the whale had             | 122 |
| swallowed.  | 123 |
| The ship set sail one bright morning, catching a great north wind       | 135 |
| in its sails, which Jason said was a lucky sign. "We will be successful | 149 |
| on this voyage because we have the great north wind behind us," he      | 162 |
| told his crew. "We will catch the great Blue Whale, tame it, and then   | 176 |
| free the men who were savagely swallowed," said Jason, standing         | 186 |
| before the front mast. Then he unfurled the spinnaker and they set sail | 199 |
| on their voyage.  | 202 |
| The Igo crew sailed for thirty days and nights, battling storms,        | 213 |
| high waves, and winds. Finally they reached the beautiful blue waters   | 224 |
| of the south seas. Then they began to search for the great Blue Whale.  | 238 |
| Suddenly the lookout yelled, "Thar she blows, Captain Jason, and she's  | 249 |
| about twenty knots away!"   | 253 |
| Soon the whale was upon the sailing vessel and it opened its            | 265 |
| jaws to swallow the boat. Then Jason gave the order to cast all spears  | 279 |
| into the side of the whale, and the crew threw their spears. The whale  | 293 |
| bellowed and thrashed. As the whale was distracted, Jason slipped       | 303 |

inside his mouth and gathered the crews that the whale had swallowed . 315 in the past. The men were overjoyed that they were being rescued, and 328 they banded together to escape from the whale's mouth. 337
Once the men were out, the ship sailed toward the great 348
whirlpool in the sea, and the whale followed and was sucked down into 361 the whirlpool, never to be seen again. The men rejoiced and said they 374 would join the might Igo tribe and allow Jason to be their leader. 387